This image is a high-contrast, black-and-white scan of a textured surface. The texture is granular and irregular, with numerous small, bright white specks and larger, darker, more solid areas. The overall appearance is somewhat abstract and could represent a microscopic view of a material like a mineral or a heavily processed photograph of a natural surface.

This image is a high-contrast, black-and-white scan of a textured surface. The texture is highly irregular, consisting of numerous small, dark, and light spots of varying sizes, creating a noise-like pattern. There is a vertical line running through the center of the frame, which appears to be a seam or a boundary between two different sections of the original image. The overall appearance is grainy and lacks a clear subject.

10. Leucosphaera leucosphaera (L.) Pers. (Fig. 10)

This image is a high-contrast, black-and-white scan of a physical object or a specific experimental result. It features a prominent, dark, irregular shape in the center-left, surrounded by a lighter, textured area. The right side of the image contains several bright, circular or oval-shaped artifacts, likely representing dust particles or specific experimental markers. The overall appearance is grainy and non-uniform.
